Method Park releases Stages 7.1

The new version of the process management software Stages couples process execution with thrilling user experience.

Erlangen, December 6th, 2017 - Method Park, the expert for software and systems engineering, has released version 7.1 of its leading process management system.

The new features help users to share processes with all stakeholders and to apply them in practice. Process users can now manage project documents via drag & drop - while Stages is doing all the rest in the background: check-out, storage and check-in in various external version management systems.

Other updates of the new version include the generation of project handbooks in PDF and a new search engine to easily find project documents.

Stages 7.1 is available today. For further information please go to: www.methodpark.com/stages/stages-7.html
